A university education can be the first step to achieving the future you want, but how do you know you're on track to be a competitive applicant? Universities look for students who showcase strength in academics, leadership, innovative thinking and an inclusive perspective.

Before you apply, you'll want to make sure you've completed any required A-G preparation for your chosen major. For many universities, completion of minimum A-G preparation is a requirement for admission.

Visit Universities You're Interested In

The best way to get to know a university is to visit the campus. Make a list of your top schools and schedule a campus tour for the chance to see the campus, learn more about their admissions requirements and possibly connect with current students who can answer your questions. If you're not able to visit in person, most universities offer a virtual tour that includes highlights to familiarize yourself with the campus.

Utilize Online Tools

Online tools like BigFutures, CommonApplication, and Cappex can help you track your progress

CollegeData App:

A mobile app that offers access to important college application and testing dates, a scholarship finder, and tools to compare colleges and assess your chances of admission.

Fall 2026 UC application and filing deadline

The UC application for fall 2026 is now open! Students can begin submitting their UC applications on October 1. For fall 2026 applicants only, the filing deadline has been extended until December 1.

UC encourages students to spend ample time on their application, developing each section to reflect the accomplishments, challenges, opportunities and talents of each student within their own family, school and community context.

Why Take the PSAT/NMSQT?

The Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) is more than good practice for the SAT, and the scores are more than just a number. With your results you can:

See Your Progress

If you've already taken the PSAT 8/9 or PSAT 10, you'll be able to track your improvement.

Set a Target

With insights about your knowledge and skills, set your own target SAT score.

Get Your AP Potential

Access personalized recommendations about AP courses that are a good fit.
